

ABSTRACT

A restraint system for vehicle occupants includes a restraint device, a control unit for controlling the restraint device,
5 and at least one pressure sensor situated in a peripheral region of a vehicle. The restraint system also includes at least one position sensor for measuring the position of at least one movable part of the vehicle. The output signal from the position sensor may be combined with the output signal
10 from the pressure sensor.